

Financial Institution Select Bond

Like other well-managed financial services firms, you take pride in a thorough approach to managing risks. Your organization employs trustworthy, reliable people and installs sophisticated internal and external security systems.

Still, are there other protective measures you've overlooked? For example, your financial institution bond protects your organization from certain internal or external actions over which you have no control or knowledge. When did you last look at your financial institution bond? Do you have the right coverages? Do your limits match your exposures?
